2. Jay Sourwine, Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, telephoned stating he had a call awaiting him from [] and inquiring if we had any guidance. Having in mind the position of the DCI and J. C. King on this case which King communicated to me this morning, I advised Sourwine that we were carefully considering the matter and thanked him for bringing this matter to our attention.

In a very few minutes, Sourwine telephoned again saying he had talked with [] who apparently was somewhat displeased, indicating the interview yesterday with Agency people had been unsatisfactory with vague mention of contacting him later and inquiring again if the Subcommittee could assist him with funds. Sourwine told him the Subcommittee had no funds. I assured Sourwine that we were carefully considering this situation and would be in touch with [] today.

[] (WH Division) was advised of the above and will have someone contact [] today. In talking with [] I suggested, as I had earlier with J. C. King, that any assistance either apparent or otherwise which we might consider for [] should have as a part of the arrangement [] advising Sourwine that he was in discussion with the Agency and thanking Sourwine for his help.
